

Little Harbor 53

53'

The Little Harbor 53 was designed by Ted Hood as a continuing evolution of his more than 55 designs built since 1959. His concept of a moderate-to-heavy displacement, keel/centerboard hull driven by a powerful rig has been refined on this boat with a strong emphasis on cockpit layout and ease of handling.

This design philosophy provides for many desirable features. Most important, performance is exceptional in all conditions because of a high sail-area/wetted-surface ratio and high ballast/displacement ratio. The beam and displacement of this boat also provide more interior volume for living space, tankage, and shoal-draft/centerboard configuration allows access to shallow cruising grounds and, when down, improves windward performance.

Each boat is custom built inside and out. Our design team works closely with the owner to design an interior layout and to specify proven equipment that meets a particular owner's individual requirements.

Hull construction is hand laid-up fiberglass with Airex foam core, decks are built with Divinycell foam core. Standard features include teak decks, teak toerail, Barient self-tailing winches, Westerbeke engines, Bass electrical panels, and Maxi feathering propellers. All deck hardware is custom-made stainless steel, including hatches, port-holes, chainplates, blocks, and stemhead fitting.
