Westsail

no matter what you earn...

You can own a Westsail for $8,000 or $130,000... anywhere from a bare hull to a fully outfitted circumnavigator.

If cruising is in your plans for the future, you needn't wait to afford a fully outfitted sailboat. Consider laying your own hands to the task of finishing your sailing ship; Westsails are available in six different stages of completion and outfitting.

Westsail has a comprehensive program oriented toward helping kit boat owners complete their project. Your construction manual contains all the blueprints, drawings, and schematics you will be using. Westsail also provides pre-engineered finishing kits. By using these kits you will be able to have all the parts and pieces necessary to complete a particular job without having to go out shopping for miscellaneous items, thus saving valuable building time. For instance, the teak cabin sole kit contains all the teak, plugs, bedding compound, screws, etc. needed to complete the job. You supply the manpower; Westsail supplies the engineering and material. As you are rolling along completing your boat, you may run into a situation where a little advice from a pro would help. At that point a letter or call to Westsail's Kit Sales Office will get you the needed information. Our office is staffed specifically for technical support of Westsail kit builders. You will also receive our Custom Boat Newsletter which will bring you up-to-date with what is new in the kit boat field; building tips from other people nationwide; and best of all, a scrounging section where we offer to Westsail owners items that are used, obsolete, or marred.

Join the discriminating fraternity of cruisers who have had the opportunity to have a hand in the completion of their boat.

We are looking forward to your joining us!
